

G. A. R. Encampment.

What Was Accomplished at the Milwaukee Meeting.

ALGER ELECTED COMMANDER.

Boston Selected as the Place for Holding the Next Encampment—Reports of the Commander-in-Chief and Other Officers for the Past Year.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 29.—Between 700 and 800 delegates were present on the ground floor of the West Side Turner Hall Wednesday morning when the first session of the twenty-third National encampment was called to order by Commander-in-Chief Warner.

The usual formal ceremonies took but a little while, when the committee on resolutions reported that all present were entitled to seats. Then the commander-in-chief presented a lengthy report reviewing the progress of the order during the past year and comparing it with previous administrations.

The lengthy introduction to Gen. Warner's report was devoted to an eloquent eulogy of the Grand Army and its purposes. The present membership of the order, he went on to say, aggregated 140,000, divided among 9,711 posts and forty-two departments. The greatest gain was in Missouri, 3,632. The departments of Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, New York, Wisconsin and Ohio also showed gains. The death roll has been unusually heavy, 4,636 veterans having passed away during the year. Since 1871 the order had expended $2,500,000 in charity, of which a quarter of a million had been distributed within a year.

The report urged the departments of the country to initiate the action of the New York department, in presenting American flags to the public schools on Washington's birthday. Action tending to draw the order closer to the Sons of Veterans, as well as to the order, Military Telegraphers was urged, and the pension question was dealt with at length. The commander-in-chief deplored the fact that the committee appointed at the Columbus encampment to press the pension ideas of the order upon the attention of congress, had been unable to make any progress. He reiterated the arguments in favor of the dependent pension bill, declared that a service pension must come and insisted that the bond holders of the country should reward the men who stood by in its hour of peril. The report of Adj. Gen. Weigelt was devoted to statistical information. Two new departments, those of Georgia and Alabama, had come into existence during the year.

The routine reports of the adjutant general, surgeon general, judge advocate general were next submitted, and a special committee of five was appointed to consider the recommendations contained in the various reports and report to the encampment.

A large number of resolutions, the majority relating to changes in the pension laws and others to ritual representation in the encampment, etc., were handed in by delegates from different encampments and referred without debate to appropriate committees.

Before the close of the morning session something of a sensation was created when Gen. McMahon, of New York, arose and offered a resolution which had been unanimously adopted by the delegates from that state. It declared that the Grand Army was composed of citizens who had served honorably in the cause of the country and had been honorably discharged from further service in the army and navy of the United States; that they were zealous for its glory and the good name of its surviving comrades, as well as mindful of the honor due to the memory of the dead, and that the encampment therefore protested against any construction of existing laws which would place on the pension rolls men dishonorably discharged from the service. The resolution was greeted with applause, but under the rules it went to the committee without debate.

When the delegates assembled after lunch, a lengthy report from the committee on pensions was presented. It opened expressing regret that, owing to the short session of congress after the last encampment and the crowded condition of business, little in the line of practical results could be accomplished. After the congressional recess the committee met in Chicago and proceeded to the home of the president elect. The interview was a pleasant one. Gen. Harrison gave cordial assurances of his warm interest in the question of pensions and expressed an earnest desire that generous pensions to the soldiers of the Union should be granted.

After the last encampment the committee prepared two bills, one a disability bill so broadened in its provisions to include an endorsement of pensions and another to give every honorably discharged veteran a monthly rate of one cent for each day's service. These bills were given in detail and the committee expressed its regret that it had been unable to secure favorable action upon them. Should, however, the encampment reaffirm its position, the same bills were ready for early presentation to both houses of congress immediately upon the opening of the session, and from interviews with the leading men of both houses the cordial and friendly attitude of the administration, and the liberal views of the secretary of the interior and the commissioner of pensions, the latter being appointed after eight years of faithful service on this committee, it was believed that before the conclusion of the next session of congress legislation would be had which would go far beyond the completion of the full measure of the National indebtedness to the men who defended

From this report went on to give in detail the work that had been accomplished by the Grand Army pension committees in eight years. The clerical force in the pension office had been increased from 742 to 1,539, in the adjutant general's office to 157. There were 166 additions to the list of surgeons, and fifty-two in another department. These additions had necessitated an extra expenditure of $3,000,000 yearly. A law had been passed giving the commissioner of pensions power to appoint boards of examining surgeons throughout the country to expedite the work. Another appointing 23 additional special examiners in the field to examine cases in which questions arose. A third authorizing the employment of experts as to special diseases in cases demanding special attention, still another that the acceptance and muster as a soldier should in all cases be accepted as prima facie evidence of his soundness at the time against existing disabilities.

Others increasing widows' pensions from $5 to 12 per month, increasing the rate for severe disability, had been passed. The disability bill that was vetoed, as well as the measures providing for pensions to all widows, without reference to the cause of death of their husbands, for the benefit of survivors of rebel prisons; and for the re-enactment of the rebel law were also the fruit of the committee's work, while even a statement did not cover all that it had done.

The report concludes by recommending that the work be pushed with vigor for the year to come. It is signed by committees S. M. Merrill, John S. Kountze, J. P. H. Burst, R. W. Blue and Lucius Fairchild.

Nominations for the locality in which the next encampment should be held, were declared in order. Saratoga, Indianapolis, Washington and Boston were named. Several speeches were made in behalf of each place. Several hours were consumed. A lost vote resulted: Indianapolis, 29; Saratoga, 31; Washington, 68. The count was made on Boston until 402 was reached, and then the advocates of the other cities threw up the sponge and the selection was made unanimously.

At last night's session of the encampment, Gen. Russell A. Alger, of Michigan, was elected commander-in-chief for the coming year. Judge Vezey, of Vermont, and Gen. Consigny, of Iowa, were placed in nomination, but both withdrew and Alger's election was made by acclamation. A. C. Weissert, of Wisconsin, was elected senior vice commander without opposition, and John P. Lovett, of New Jersey, was chosen junior vice commander by a vote of 182 to 127 for H. E. Tainter, of Connecticut. At 11:20 the encampment adjourned.

Gen. Sherman spent two hours at the soldiers' home yesterday, and in the afternoon went to the National park and reviewed the Chicago Zouaves, Battery L, of Chicago, the First Light battery and the Fourth battalion.

The United States veteran corps held its annual meeting and elected Governor Foraker president.

The reports presented at the annual convention of the National Association of the Naval Reserves showed a great increase of membership during the year.

A delegation of ex-members of the Confederate army arrived in the city yesterday to seek the support of the National encampment in the reunion of the Blue and the Gray, which takes place at Vicksburg next month.

It is said that Gen. Goff, of West Virginia, made a similar report to the president, after his return from his trip through the territories.

Gen. Clarkson will go to Indiana after he finishes up the work which brought him here.

Trying the Suspects.

Argument Produced for Separate Trials.

FOUR HOURS' SESSION OF COURT.

No Decisions Reached, but It Is Likely That Coughlin and P. O. Sullivan Will Be Tried Together, and That Burke and Woodruff Will Obtain Separate Trials.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—At 10 o'clock yesterday morning the hearing of the motions of the defendants in the Cronin case for separate trials was begun in branch No. 3 of the criminal court. It required two full halls at each door to prevent the room from becoming overcrowded. The prisoners were brought in underground shortly before 10 o'clock, and all except P. O. Sullivan appeared self-possessed. The ice man was moody and silent.

Proceedings begun by Attorney Forrest announcing to the court that he would like to file another affidavit in the motion of Coughlin for a separate trial. It had reference to the evidence of Capt. Schaeck before the coroner's jury, about the state in which Woodruff made his confession. The affidavit was filed without reading.

Judge Wing then began an argument in Coughlin's behalf. He argued that his client should be tried alone, and went on to show that evidence might be introduced against Sullivan, Burke or others which would be prejudicial to Coughlin if the cases were tried together, and that this evidence would be inadmissible if Coughlin would be tried alone.

Continuing, the judge said there had not been a case in 200 years where a man had been compelled to go to trial with another who had confessed to a share in the crime charged against him. Judge Longenecker then offered an affidavit in denial of the statement made by Kinzie in his motion, when Judge McConnell informed him it was unnecessary. The judge also reminded the attorneys for defense that the defendants were under indictment for conspiracy to murder as well as for murder, and that Judge Wing's argument would apply only in the latter case. Mr. Forrest then explained that it had been agreed that he was to look out for the conspiracy part of the case.

Mr. Donahoe then took the floor in behalf of P. O. Sullivan, and read a number of decisions bearing on his motion, and said Judge Wing's argument was applicable in the case of his client.

Senator Kennedy followed for Burke. He declared that the minds of the public were poisoned against the defendants; that it would be impossible for his client to get a fair trial with them.

Mr. Browne then, on Woodruff's behalf, urged substantially the same reasons for a separate trial for his client.

Judge Longenecker then took the floor and declared he would not ask for a better argument to show the existence of a conspiracy than that of Judge Wing. "If we show a conspiracy to murder Dr. Cronin when Burke rented the Carlson cottage," said the state attorney, "then in the eyes of the law, the whole of these men rented the cottage."

Judge Longenecker then explained that a separate trial could avail the defense nothing, and would only make the trials consume a much longer time and put the country to much unnecessary expense. He then read a number of decisions bearing on the case, and after reviewing the argument by the counsel for the defense declared that nothing had been shown to entitle any of the defendants to a separate trial, on the ground of prejudice, for the same evidence would be admissible on a separate trial as on a joint trial.

Mr. Forrest, replying to the state's attorney, argued that it would be impossible to prevent evidence against one being prejudicial against another, and even though a judge instructed a jury that such was inadmissible against defendant, an impression would be left that would endanger such defendant's case. Then Mr. Forrest admitted he knew of no reason why Coughlin and Sullivan could be tried jointly, but claimed that Burke's flight and Woodruff's alleged confession had prejudiced their case, and a jury ought not to be allowed to draw any inference from it to the injury of Coughlin and Sullivan.

At the conclusion of Mr. Forrest's remarks Judge McConnell said he would pass on the motion today.

The matter of Kinzie's motion was laid over until some future time. The prisoners were remanded, and court adjourned after a few hours' session.

A Great Cave Discovered.

CLAYVILLE, Penn., Aug. 29.—Nash Miller, while blasting a large rock on his farm, found, when the rock was removed, the entrance to a cavern which promises to rival the famous Mammoth cave of Kentucky. Mr. Miller explored the cave over 100 yards and found chambers of different sizes. In one was found a skeleton, supposed to be that of an Indian chief, as bows, arrows and other implements of war were scattered around. By the side of the skeleton was found a gold watch of a strange and curious pattern.

Two Ladies Killed.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 29.—Two ladies in a buggy collided with the outgoing passenger train of the Chicago and Northern railway at the Viet street crossing at 6:55 last night, through carelessness, and were killed. They were later identified as Mrs. E. P. Bennett and her sister, Miss Dobson. Both are residents of Wauwatosa, a village west of this city. They are sisters of Abram Bond, a well known Milwaukee merchant.

THE LONDON DOCK MEN.

One Hundred Thousand Men Idle and the Number Increasing—Foreign News.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—By far the most serious event of the day is the immense strike now going on in London. It gives very serious uneasiness to the authorities, and no wonder, for nearly 100,000 men are already engaged in it, and there is every reason to believe that number will go on increasing, for there are many signs that the entire movement has been preconcerted, and that Socialistic bodies in London have been busily preparing for it for some little time.

The general public do not yet seem to be aware of what is taking place around them. The shipping trade of this great port is nearly paralyzed, the coal trade is blocked, and the goods are with difficulty delivered, and it is well known that the gas companies are in fear and trembling of a strike which would plunge London in darkness. In point of fact what seems to be impending is something very like a general rising among the labor classes.

Celestials Will Organize in New York to Keep Up Laundry Prices.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—The Chinese laundrymen of this city have set on foot a movement to organize a Chinese Laundry union. For some time past their business has been steadily falling off; they attribute this to cut-throat competition among themselves.

There are about 1,000 Chinese laundrymen in town. The chief aim of the union is to establish a uniform rate of charges. It will also furnish aid to needy members. A membership fee of $50 is charged, paid by installments. The laundrymen disclaim any intention of establishing a "trust."

The Money Market.

It Is Reported in a Healthy Condition.

BONDS BOUGHT AT ANY PRICE.

The United States Treasurer is Likely to Pay a Smaller Price Than a Larger One for Government Bonds—Yellow Fever Coming—Other Dispatches from Washington.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—"A lower rather than a higher price is likely to be paid for United States government bonds within the next few days," said Acting Secretary of the Treasury Batcheller to a United Press reporter. "The offers received by the treasury department are from the leading banks and bankers of the country, many of whom represent foreign capitalists."

"These bankers are not in need of money and the prices at which the bonds are offered, therefore indicate a healthy tone in the money market. The treasury department is receiving as many bonds at its own price as is now convenient to purchase, and if the large offerings continue in the next few days, it may be that the treasury bonds will be lowered."

Within the past three days the treasury department has purchased $10,840,000 worth of bonds, for which it paid with the premium nearly $15,000,000. The surplus to-day is about $42,000,000; ten days ago it was $70,000,000. The decrease in the past ten days has been nearly $28,000,000.

The bond purchases yesterday were $3,821,100 of four's at 128, and $67,000 four-and-a-half's at 106½.

FOUR RAILROAD ACCIDENTS.

All of Them Occur Within the City Limits of Buffalo, N. Y.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Aug. 29.—Four railroad accidents occurred within the city limits last night. A misplaced switch at the Swan street crossing caused a collision on the West Shore road with a Rochester and Pittsburgh train. The Rochester and Pittsburgh engine ran into West Shore sleepers, throwing them from the track. Robert Wood, a boy, was thrown from the car platform and had his wrist fractured. A lady passenger and the negro porter were badly bruised.

A Western New York and Pennsylvania train ran off the track about the same time near North Division street.

Engine 56 on the Nickel-Plate road was run out of the Chicago street round house about 7 o'clock, and near the Hamburg street crossing the engineer saw train No. 21 coming in at fast speed. He reversed his engine and he and the fireman jumped. The train hit the switch engine with terrific force, knocking it back into the round house.

California's Wine Crop Short.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 29.—The Merchant and Vintner's estimates that the wine produce of California will not exceed 12,000,000 gallons this year. This is a reduction of 8,000,000 gallons from the earliest estimates. The reduction is due partly to damage by submersion and mildew. The same paper estimates that the state will produce 1,000,000 gallons of brandy this year.

OHIO DEMOCRATS.

The State Convention Nominates a Ticket Headed by James E. Campbell.

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 29.—The state Democratic convention was called to order by Dr. Norton, the chairman of the state central committee, and after prayer by Rev. Dr. McFarlin, Dr. Norton made a brief address, outlining the purposes of the convention. He made his speech the vehicle for a caustic criticism of the Republican party and especially of Governor Foraker, the candidate of that party for re-election. This was followed by a eulogy of the Democratic party and its principles. His allusion to Grover Cleveland, as the noblest and greatest of living Democrats, was marked by long continued applause.

The committee on credentials reported no contest. The report was adopted. The Hon. M. D. Harter, of Richland county, was named for permanent president; Lewis C. Bernard, of Hamilton county, for secretary, and Peter Weidner, of Montgomery, for sergeant-at-arms. They were duly elected along with a vice president and assistant secretary for each congressional district. Mr. Harter, on taking the chair, made an extremely long address, covering all points at issue between the two great parties.

After adopting the report of the committee on rules and order of business and the announcement of the state central committee, the Hon. John A. McMahon made the report of the committee on resolutions, prefacing it with the statement that it was not a compromise, but was unanimously adopted, and that the committee was fully agreed that there should be no backward step in the matter of tariff reform.

The platform was adopted with unanimity and applause.

James E. Campbell, of Hamilton; ex-congressman Lawrence T. Neal, of Chillicothe, and Hon. Virgil P. Kline, of Cleveland, were each placed before the convention for governor. The first vote resulted, as follows: Whole number of votes, 789; Kline, 109; Neal, 292; Campbell, 388. No choice and the second ballot followed. Whole number of votes, 789; Kline, 93; Neal, 290; Campbell, 397.

The remainder of the state ticket was completed as follows:

For state treasurer, W. E. Bodan, of Greenway county.

For school commissioner, Charles O. Miller, of Putnam county.

For attorney general, Jesse M. Lewis, of Urbana.

For member board of public works, Frank Reynolds, of Cincinnati.

For clerk of supreme court, I. J. C. Shumaker, of Tiffin.

The convention then adjourned sine die.

STARTLING STORY.

The Bodies of Two Seneca Editors Said to Be Dangling from Trees.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 29.—The conductor and baggage-master of the northbound Queen and Crescent Tuesday night, reaching here about 8:30, say that when they passed Meridian the bodies of two colored men were seen dangling from a tree near the railroad. They inquired who they were, and it was stated they were E. M. Bryant and Jones, of the Seneca Independent. Nothing can be learned here.

Bryant and Jones are the men who have been writing articles for The Independent which were calculated to stir up strife between the races in Alabama, and to which the white people of Seneca objected so strongly about a week ago. Bryant had been personally warned against writing any thing incendiary.

The two left Seneca one day last week in order to avoid unpleasant consequences at the hands of the increased people, since which time nothing has been made public as to their movements.

HIDDEN TREASURES.

A Workman Digs Up a Pot of Spanish Coins Bearing Very Old Dates.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 29.—A St. Augustine special to The Times-Union says there is great excitement there over the discovery of hidden Spanish treasure in an old house, on the corner of Bridge and Marine streets, which is being torn down to make room for improvements. A negro couple, in digging near the foundation of the chimney dug up a metallic pot containing fifty-two Spanish coins. The latest date on the coins is 1800, and several of them antedate 1700.

The house and lot are the property of an American lady of wealth, who some years ago married one of the nobility of Europe. So great was the excitement about the building that it was necessary to call upon the police to keep back the crowd, and last night the place was fenced in and securely guarded. Further operations are anxiously awaited.

Colorado Gulch on Fire.

HERRERA, Mont., Aug. 29.—Colorado gulch, which extends into Helena and which is heavily timbered, is on fire twelve miles from here and the flames are progressing in this direction. The sawmills and wood camps of Storrock & Brown and J. Spencer were burned Tuesday and the men forced to flee for their lives. Several narrow escapes are recorded. Their hair, beards, and clothes were burned. Quite an open space lies between the head of the gulch and the timber nearest Helena, and it is thought the fire cannot traverse this space.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 29.

The long expected trial of the men who are accused of murdering Dr. Cronin has at last begun. Its result will in all probability show which is the strongest in Chicago—justice or the Clan-na-Gael.

Judge Norris has been creditably introduced to the Democracy of Ohio, even if he was not nominated. He received 235 votes for supreme judge, with two other candidates in the field, and the showing is very creditable.

The scene of a desperate convict in the Michigan State prison at Jackson to blow up the entire structure, was an appalling one, and the prison authorities are to be congratulated on its discovery and frustration. They will do well to keep a closer watch on their prisoners in the future.

Campbell's nomination is satisfactory to the Marion county Democracy, even if the delegation was nearly solid for Neal. Mr. Campbell is certainly the Democracy's strongest man, and he will make a strong campaign. Of course he is the "machine" man, but that does not impair his worth. The machine is an essential to politics, and it goes with the platform and principles in all parties. We imagine he will err, however, in attacking Foraker's mistakes. The Governor has too clean a record to be easily downed by a campaign on his errors.

They have a very rapid way of doing things out in Chicago. The old cry, "fifteen minutes for divorce," which, it is said, used to greet the ears of travelers passing through that city, might now be applied, with a little variation, to the business of granting learned degrees. They have an institution out there in full operation where, for from $15 to $25, you can get almost any title affixed to your name from a modest A. M. to a D. D., LL.D., and yet this is the city that aspires to dignity of a World's Fair in 1892.

THE GERMAN WOMAN.

How She Lives from Child to Wife, with Incidents of Courtship.

The German woman is neither the excellent housewife which she professes to be nor the bluestocking she is often thought. "Gretchen" exists no longer, except on the lids of the boxes of candied fruits, and she is quite a match for Faust when she meets him. In fact, the German girl of today, especially in Berlin, is not so much like the Marguerite of Goethe as the Loulou of "Gyp."

German school life is a serious business. It begins at 7 years old, and the two subjects of study which are specially in favor with all classes of people of any pretensions are French and the piano. "I do not think it is an exaggeration," says the writer, "to say that 95 per cent. of the daughters of parents in easy circumstances play the piano and 90 per cent. speak French."

As soon as a girl becomes confirmed her education is generally concluded, unless she goes in for special higher branches of study. Her parents begin to think of getting her married, and she goes to her first ball. Courtship, the preliminaries to which generally take place on the floor of the ball room, or in the winter, to the rhythm of the same waltz time played by the same military band on the ice, is inaugurated thus: If the young man means business he calls on the young lady's parents one Sunday and breaks the ice. He will then be asked to dinner, and a ceremonious exchange of little sentimental presents will take place between the pair, interlarded with sentimental sentences—always in French.

When an engagement has been definitely announced the young people are allowed a certain English amount of freedom in their intercourse. Indeed, if we may believe the writer, their manners and customs are considerably more frankly free than ours in this country, for, she says, "they do not scruple to kiss each other in public as often as they feel inclined, and there is nothing more disagreeable to a stranger than the spectacle of one of these sentimental couples." Before marriage the German girl is a mighty reader of novels, her capacity for sentimental stories being simply inexhaustible. Rarely, however, does marriage in Germany prove the realization of any of the dreams in which her girlish fancy has taken delight.

The German married woman has never occupied the same place as does the French woman, by reason of the total absence of any sentiment of chivalry or romance in the treatment of women by men in Germany. True, the men, the husbands, the brothers of the women of Germany, deserve our respect for their energy, their character—all that supplies a nation with its force. But how disastrous is that force for the women. There is more fatal force than even to fight. What hardness in the dignity! What unendurable, what supreme indifference on the part of these proud and selfish heroes, who do not ask their companions of the other sex to understand them and appreciate them, but only to keep home satisfactorily and to bear a number of children! So far, indeed, does the German husband carry his want of gallantry that he absolutely dislikes to see his wife make use of any of those advantages of the toilet, the results of which are comprised in the epithet scornfully applied to a well-dressed woman—compensisme.

The state of intellectual, moral and social subjection of the German woman naturally does not tend to develop any originality in her. She never starts a new idea or a new fashion. Imitation, not invention, is the utmost of which she is capable, and even in imitating she is slow. The German woman is crushed beneath the overwhelming superiority of her lord and master. The famous "dantesches welly," which, the traditional type of the German woman, is just the German of Tacitus—the servant of man.—Cor. London Globe.

This Dog Can Tell Time, Too.

County Clerk Wolff owns a little black and tan dog that has a habit of visiting his master daily at 4 o'clock p. m. One day during the recent rains a hard shower set in just about 4 o'clock, and the clerk and his deputy were speculating as to whether the dog would make his usual visit, when he was heard rushing up stairs. He reached the office dripping wet, two minutes late, which fact he seemed to feel. After the adjournment of the county commission, last Wednesday, and before the board left the room, the clerk was busy writing up the minutes of the meeting, when he heard the well known footsteps of his visitor. Without raising his eyes from the minute book, George remarked that it was 4 o'clock. There being no clock in the room and the clerk not having referred to his watch, those present asked what made him think so, when he replied that his dog was coming. Watches were drawn, and although some of them varied a minute or two, that of the clerk pointed to precisely 4 o'clock. Another peculiarity of the dog, and one his master greatly appreciates, is that he is never at home at meal times, preferring to take the same with neighbors.—Fernanda Mirror.

He Got His Wedding Too.

A certain justice of the peace near Brunswick had a call recently from a colored man with the request that he come down and marry him. The justice, remembering his past experience, told the fellow that he would consent to go on condition that he be paid $2.50, and that amount in cash. Assent was given, and the officer of the law set out, lantern in hand, and covered with an umbrella (for it was pouring down rain). Arriving at the spot, he called out the couple and forthwith "tied the knot." When all was over the groom stepped up to the justice and informed him that he would "call and settle." This did not please the majesty of the law, and he at once called the couple back to untie the knot. This was too much for the bride and groom. A few minutes' conversation ensued. The bride retired and soon returned with the cash.—Macon Telegraph.

OHIO FINANCES.

They are in a Better Condition Than Ever Before.

A Statement Made by State Auditor E. W. Poe.

An Explicit Denial of the Charge That Unlawful Use Was Made of the Sinking Fund—Not One Dollar Has Been Used at Any Time Except as Provided and Directed by Law.

Auditor of State Poe makes the following statement regarding the financial condition of Ohio:

ACQUITTAL OF STATE'S OFFICE,
 COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 22, 1889.

To the Public:
 In answer to inquiries by letters and otherwise with regard to the finances of the state, I have thought it best to make a statement in brief a manner as I can, and yet so simple that any school-boy can readily understand what it means.

On the 8th day of February, 1889, in answer to a resolution introduced by the house of representatives, I submitted a report showing the then present condition of the finances of the state, and what, in my opinion, would be their condition July 1, 1890, including in said statement the taxes due June 30, 1889, which are now being covered by the state treasury. The following is a brief and plain statement of the general revenue fund, sinking fund and state common school fund:

Electric Lighting by the Knowles System.
An Illustrated Description of the Storage Battery—An Experiment in Equilibrium Affords a Pleasing Recreation.

The Knowles electric light system consists of a central station containing the dynamo for the generation of the current, which is then conducted to the several points at which it is to be used. At these points, instead of passing the current through the lamps, it is employed in storage batteries, and from these storage batteries the current for lamp use is obtained. It is maintained that this system is more economical and that it allows of longer circuits than that of direct distribution.

The system has been in operation for some time in Brooklyn, N. Y. The battery station in this Brooklyn plant is about half a mile away from the dynamo station.

STORAGE BATTERY—KNOWLES' PATENT.
In his secondary battery Mr. Knowles has several new features, and has avoided the application of the active material as a paste. The figure in the cut, a reprint from Science, shows the cell complete. The perforated plates of non-oxidizable alloy are made in two sheets, between which is held a layer of the active material, which is molded to the right shape before being placed between the two halves of the retaining plates. When ready the whole is assembled as shown in the illustration, flexible insulating rods being passed through the books cast on the plates top and bottom.

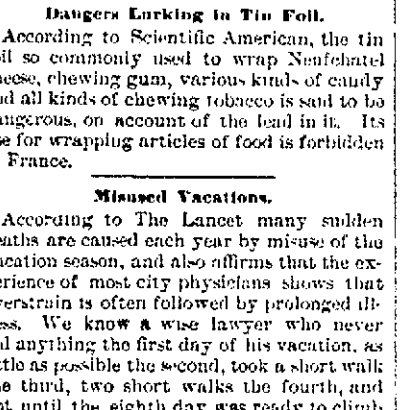

An Experiment in Equilibrium.
A pleasing scientific recreation is afforded by a box of dominoes, the problem being to stand every piece upon its point without the aid of any foreign object. This, explains La Nature, is accomplished by arranging them in a circle, as shown in the engraving, the first domino being kept in position by resting it against another one which lays flat upon the table. When the circle is almost completed the two ends are carefully stood with the hand, and the recumbent domino raised to an upright position, forming, as it were, the key-stone of the structure. This is the only part of the experiment requiring any care, and, as is shown in the engraving, the greatest stability is obtained by giving the dominoes such an inclination that the top of each rests against the middle dividing line of the succeeding ones.

Charming Styles in Furniture.
Special lines of pretty furniture in green, light designs, and delicate colors, suitable for summer cottages, or for the many modest homes, where rich, heavy effects are not desirable, are offered to purchasers. In noting some of these Good Housekeeping tells that natural woods in light colors, such as birch, white maple, satin wood, bamboo and mahogany, are not of deep tone when finished in its natural condition, are excellent for the light white, pink and blue enamels, which, however, will surpass all other effects for light summer or winter rooms.

The best enameled work comes from France. The enamels so prettily used in this country have not the staple properties of the French article, which does not stain, turn yellow or blister. Still very satisfactory, or, single pieces of furniture can be made at home with the domestic enamel, which can be purchased for twenty-five cents a large bath.

The piece to be decorated must be carefully freed from paint or varnish by scraping, or else a plain, unpainted piece may be procured from the factory. If the enamel be well rubbed in and the home artist is hereby advised that the process requires strength and patience, and should not be crowded into a day, or half a dozen. Several pieces are to be prepared, a beautiful effect may be obtained which will amply compensate for considerable effort.

Nothing could be more charming for a sleeping room or summer parlor than these fresh, white surfaces, either plain or picked out with bands and suggestions of gold. The chairs may be enameled, painted white, or upholstered in olive, old rose, pink, blue or terra cotta plush, or with delicate hand silk designs, or with new patterns of cretonne, according to one's taste or taste. A very artistic set was displayed which is upholstered in Aubusson tapestry, a close imitation of the priceless Gobelin, but finely woven in stead of hand made. There were the usual parlor pieces, chairs and sofas in broad, low, inviting shapes, odd little tables and cabinets, and a pretty fancy for a window seat, which was so artistic and effective and so easily imitated that The Good Housekeeping correspondent begged of the designer a sketch, which is here reproduced.

Dangers Lurking in Tin Foil.
According to Scientific American, the tin foil so commonly used to wrap Neufchatel cheese, chewing gum, various kinds of candy and all kinds of chewing tobacco is said to be dangerous, on account of the lead in it. Its use for wrapping articles of food is forbidden in France.

Misused Vaccinations.
According to The Lancet many children deaths are caused each year by misuse of the vaccination season, and also affirms that the experience of most city physicians shows that overstrain is often followed by prolonged illness. We know a wise lawyer who never did anything the first day of his vacation, as little as possible the second, took a short walk the third, two short walks the fourth, and not until the eighth day was ready to climb a mountain. By this cautious course he grew stronger to the end, and returned home with vitality enough to work till the next outing came around. One can make a great change in his habits without detriment if he takes a long time to do it, but only young persons can risk sudden changes, and they sometimes fall victims to the strain.

Ancient Auctions.
Auctions were early known in Rome, and are mentioned by Petronius Arbitrator about A. D. 66. This kind of sale was introduced into England about 1700.

ALL AROUND THE HOUSE.

More artistic and beautiful effects than those now gained in table decoration are hardly conceivable. Fancy the following scheme of color lately used at a dinner party for twenty-two persons. The table is covered with a tracery of white and pale green ribbon tied at short intervals in bows, in each of which is placed a large tea rose. The center piece is composed of large tea roses and long trails of a silencing rose which spread itself all over the table, the roses and ribbons are laid on a carpet of pale salmon colored tulle, and at intervals small electric lights shine softly through the tulle and sparkle in the flowers of the center piece. It is difficult to imagine anything more soft and refreshing.

All decorations are arranged very low, but flowers spread on the cloth itself are very effective if the blossoms are not too many and too straggling. These should start from a center, such as the base of a dish, and flow thence around the other ornaments in a graceful and well ordered fashion.

Modest and inexpensive, as well as pretty, are the little berry baskets, gilt or silvered, and filled with damp moss holding flowers or berries.

Caterers are not to be outdoors in artistic work by decorators; and as table appointments grow in luxury, the purveyors to the palate exhibit a long-suffering skill in their tempting manner of offering delicacies.

Satin paper cases and silver shells, that have been considered the acme of elegance in serving ice creams, are now replaced by flowers of nature's own production, and for the favorites have this season slipped their lace from real catkins or sweet and velvet petals roses. Imagine a calla robed of its pistil and filled to the lip with banana cream or orange jelly, a full blown rose holding vanilla cream or Vienna cake; a sturdy peony filled with lemon cream, or tulips heaped with any cream or ice one's taste may suggest.

There, as a most delicate caprice, are lily of the valley leaves filled with a grace and served on a pink plate, against which the delicate green foliage is most effective.

Two cream roses furnish a portion for one person; or, if small blossoms, such as Rose Silesia, tea and pearl roses are chosen, three are daintily tied together with ribbons.

In vegetable forms, asparagus (a favorite), and two long sticks of vanilla cream, tipped with pistache and with a sauce of yellow cream, recall the real vegetable.

How to Dry Lace Curtains.
A puzzle to the home laundress who does up her own curtains is how to dry them nicely. A quick and easy way is the following:

Have made a nice, light frame, similar to an old fashioned quilting frame, and consisting of two long side strips and two short ones for the ends. Wind the strips with cloth, and let the corners of the frame be held firmly by wooden pins put through the holes made for that purpose. Put the frame on chairs out of doors in the sun. Pin the starched curtain to the cloth of the frame, first the sides, then the bottom and, lastly, the top of the curtain, drawing it carefully into shape. A curtain will dry quickly in this way and may soon be replaced by another, and a whole set may be dried in a short time.

The First Short Dresses.
The first short dresses put on infants six months old were made of French muslin made with high neck and long sleeves, trimmed with drawn work, tucks and feather shading, or with a little embroidery and Valenciennes lace in insertions and rather narrow edgings. Some French mothers use white China silks for these little frocks, but also for the long robes worn by babies, and thinner sheer muslin is preferred here. The yoke may be in one with the two sleeves, or the sleeves may be French cuffs, or short sleeves at the top in front and back, with feather stitching between, or else rows of tucks that are hemstitched, or perhaps four or five narrow box pleats in front and back will hold all the fullness necessary after the bodice is sloped upward to the armhole. The slip is long enough to reach to the shoe tops, and is finished with a hem three or four inches deep that is sufficiently trimmed if very simply hemstitched. A narrow ruffle edged with Valenciennes is turned back on the neck and wrists. When separate pieces are preferred they are either round or pointed, made of tucks, with drawn work feather stitching or insertion of embroidery of Valenciennes, and are sewed with a cord to the full two broadths of the slip.

When the child is a year old, little short waisted dresses may be made, the round waist reaching only two or three inches below the armholes, tucked and hemstitched, etc., as yokes are.—Harper's Bazar.

Fashions for Autumn.
Autumn dresses are already under way at leading modistes, and the stores are showing new fabrics and their trimmings. Crepe de chine, which has been a fashionable summer fabric, will be worn late into the autumn, after which it will figure in evening toilettes. Faint cloths in mahogany, prune, the new brown and Russian greens, is now the approved material for tailor gowns.

Scotch plaids in fancy colors are counted among the autumn fabrics; so are China crepe, failles, armures and camels hair cloths.

Numbered with new things in way of dress garniture are the floral passementeries, cashmere colored Vandyces and drop trimmings of beads and cords.

Shoulder caps of cloth, with and without mantilla ends in front, are prepared for the intermediate season before heavy wraps are required.

Fashion Notes.
Fashionable gloves include mousquetaires of various lengths and kid and suede but toned gloves.

Jackets are as varied in style and as popular as ever.

New autumn dresses are, some of them, very simple in style, being planned with an underkirt of a different fabric and color from the rest of the dress.

Metal ornaments and jewelry are much worn.

Imported silks, velvets and ribbons are in dark red, mahogany, dark oak, gray and green shades.

Prominent among the season's novelties in fans are some very beautiful ones, which are mounted upon sticks of carved ivory.

WHAT SHALL WE WEAR?

FASHIONS THAT ARE APPROVED AT HOME AND ABROAD.

Ladies' and Children's Costumes—A Serviceable Dress for a Young Girl—An Illustrated Description of the Bride's Dress—A Bracelet Designed by Princess Louise.

For evening, white gowns are much worn, even by women whose youth is past. Silver is also fashionable for evening and gray cashmere for day wear. Black is always well worn, and mauve in every tone is to be seen. It is a little early to predict with certainty the incoming fashions for winter, but modistes say that long waisted corsages, made to extend over the hips in medieval style, will be a feature of the dressy toilets.

YOUNG GIRL'S COSTUME.
There are many becoming costumes for young girls. The one depicted in the cut—where are shown both front and back views—affords an attractive model for a serviceable street dress. The bodice is opened V shape front and back, and like the puffed sleeves and tunic, is of gray cashmere. The tunic is gathered at the waist and reaches front and back to display a skirt of shaded black and white chequer, which corresponds with the front and back pleats as well as with the deep creases of the full sleeves. The belt is of more ribbon, pointed in front and knotted at the back, terminating with ends.

A Notable Bride's Dress.
From the old time custom of a gift from the bride elect to her bridesmaids of the gloves to be worn on the occasion of the wedding have developed untold extravagances in the way of bridesmaid's presents. These include, at modern weddings in high life, brooches, chandelier wafers, bracelets and other gem set jewelry, silver hand prayer books, etc. The bracelet has received a fresh impetus as a bridesmaid's gift, since the marriage of the Princess Louise to Lord Fife, from the fact that the princess not only selected a bracelet, but that she designed it herself.

DESIGNED BY THE PRINCESS LOUISE.
This bracelet requires little description beyond the illustration herewith given, and affords a happy suggestion to purchasers of gifts without very large bank accounts, as it can in part be simulated at a comparatively small cost. The center is composed of the letters L and F, surrounded respectively by the royal crown and earl's coronet, all in diamonds of the finest water and mounted on a band of gold.

MONKEYING WITH A BABOON.

A Hard Sluggoer of St. Louis Gets Knocked Out in One Round.
In the old St. Louis museum we had, among other attractions, a baboon called Dick. He was a solid chunk of a fellow, good tempered, and a great favorite. He had one peculiarly, though, which we had to cater to. He took short naps twice a day, and it aroused before his time he was as ugly as sin all the rest of the day. As he had been dressed up as a little boy, and when the time came to take his nap he was carried into an old fashioned cradle, and the fat woman generally rocked him to sleep. That very thing was quite a draw, and plenty of people came in solely to see the baboon rocked off to slumber.

One day, soon after Dick had closed his eyes, a half drunken chap entered the place and created considerable disturbance. He went by the name of Awful Pete, and was a hard sluggoer. I tried to reason with him and get him out, but he unfortunately caught sight of the sleeping baboon and at once demanded that the animal be aroused and put through his tricks. I sought to explain, but he wouldn't have it, saying:

"I paid to see the baby, and I'm going to see him or bust the biffer!"

"But if you wake him up he'll fight!"

"Then I'll bring his neck!"

Before I could stop him he dashed under the rope and lifted Dick out of the cradle. The animal woke up and took in the situation in about the tenth part of a second, and then he fastened his hands into Pete's hair, got with his teeth on the sluggoer's nose, and we had a museum, menagerie and circus combined for the next five minutes. Pete roared, and roared and roared around in pain and terror, and the baboon pulled handfuls of hair from his head, and bit and scratched like a wildcat. When we finally got him off that sluggoer was a sight to behold, and had to be taken to the hospital at once. Two hours after he had his wounds dressed I went in to see him, and as soon as I spoke to him he began crying and asked:

"Was it a baboon which did this?"

"Big as a lion?"

"Oh, no. He weighs about twenty-six pounds. Why do you weep?"

"Hadin' I oter weep?" he savagely demanded, as the tears came afresh. "I've had thirteen fights and knocked my man out every time, and now to be downed by a weazoo faced monkey in one round has broke me all up!"—New York Sun.

Tommyson's Wise Words.
At the risk of provoking a snail at our simplicity, we will relate that long years ago, when we thought that great men, if they speak at all, always speak words of wisdom, we followed Tommyson, who was accompanied by a lady and two children, about the South Kensington museum for two hours and a half, hoping that he would speak. At last he made signs as if he were about to do so. Having long seen criticism of a painting we listened intently, and those memorable words fell from the lips of England's poet laureate: "You take care of the children while I go and get some beer."—Dr. J. M. Buckley in Christian Advocate.

"Disgraceful! I never thought of that!" I thought I had thought of that, and then I met the support of the week of battle, followed them down to the end, and "What a Fool I was!" I was thinking about the future."

LONG LIFE

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought until we feel a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often blunder in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life preserver, and disease-preventer that has yet been discovered, is shrouded down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names and brands, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as good as any of them?

They do not know, of course, unless they have the courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always.

Why don't you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but a dollar for a very large bottle. Try it once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life. Your druggist may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it says New Style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine, for it really is a mine of health.

—THE BESSEMER SUIT— FOR CHILDREN,

As indicated by its name, is the strongest wear-resisting suit ever placed in the market. It is double-sewed, double-seated and reinforced. The seams are unripable, the buttons cannot be pulled off. It is made of all-wool material in modest pattern, and is the best suit in the world for the money. The only place to get it is of Sam Oppenheimer.

I have also received a full line of School Suits and Pants, to be sold very low.

A large line of Neckwear just arrived, and is now on the counters for sale.

—A horrible warning to habitual gamblers is contained in the dispatch which states that a young belle of Washington has been compelled to adjure the delights of society and go into retirement on account of an abnormal enlargement of her jaw, caused entirely by persistent and excessive mastication of the wax-making but darning gum. The Coming Lecture.

Mrs. Annie Jeanness Miller, who will make her first appearance here September 6th and 7th, is not a radical dress reformer after the Dr. Mary Walker style, as some seem to consider her, but a refined cultivated woman whose artistic dressing is commented upon whenever she appears. She is coming to tell us, not how to make ourselves objects of ridicule, but to tell us how to make ourselves as beautiful as possible without violating any of the laws of health. Mrs. Miller is an example of what can be done to eliminate woman from the evils existing in the present mode of dress. Fully in her woman's career she seemed to have become a burden to her, and she was unable to give a reason for it, when her husband suggested that it might come from the weight of the clothes she wore. To prove to him that such was not the case, she had an entire outfit weighed, and was so appalled at the result that she immediately set about to consider a system of dress that would preserve all the womanly graces without destroying the health, and being a woman of wealth and leisure, she devoted time and money to that object, and the present system which she is coming to tell us about is the result. The least of her thoughts was to appear on the lecture platform. She attracted the attention of both men and women—parlor talks in Boston, her native place, became popular, and gradually her fame spread so that now there is no woman in the U. S. in greater demand than Mrs. Annie Jeanness Miller. She is the embodiment of grace and beauty—knows how to dress herself and is willing to give her less favored sisters the benefit of her experience. Every woman and man should go out to hear her. The first evening will be devoted to ladies exclusively, the second to both ladies and gentlemen.

The ladies of St. Paul's Episcopal church are having her here and are soliciting the patronage of the public by canvassing among them with course tickets. The ticket for both lectures is 75 cents, single ticket 50 cents.
